US Army Enlistment, Re-enlistment, and Education Information Request

The US Army provides excellent training for exciting jobs with great pay. If you only have a GED, you will need college credits before enlisting in the Army. If you have prior service in the military, the US Army is still interested in reenlisting you. To increase your chances for a better job and higher pay, there are some education opportunities you can learn about, too! Get information about careers, money for school, and other possible bonuses and benefits of the US Army and Army Reserve. Join the US Army Ranks by having a recruiter contact you!

There is no obligation and your personal information will only be shared as needed to provide recruiters with military career and education information.

I would like information about these US Army and US Navy enlistment, re-enlistment, and education options:

- ☒ US Army Active Duty (Full-Time)
- ☒ US Army Reserves (Part-Time)
- ☒ US Navy Active Duty (Full-Time)
- ☒ US Navy Reserves (Part-Time)
- ☒ US Army National Guard (Part-Time)
- ☒ Education Opportunities (means more options for a better job)

Please check all that apply

Legal Assistance

Those serving in the US Army have free legal counsel available to them. Depending on your need, you can get assistance via the Legal Assistance Program with the Staff Judge Advocate (SJA) office or the U.S. Army Trial Defense Service (USATDS). USATDS attorneys ordinarily assist soldiers on military administrative actions that are initiated on the basis of alleged violations of the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ) or are related to impending, pending, or recently completed UCMJ proceedings. SJA offers legal advice in many other legal situations.
